FIVE CENTS

Over 3,200 Fleeing China War Believed Dead in Ship Explosion

BERLIN REDS ACCLAIM NEW SOVIET-PICKED "MAYOR." Upwards of 200,000 Berlin Reds stage a giant rally in Unter den Linden, in front of Berlin university to acclaim Friedrich Ebert, new Soviet zone mayor "selected" by a rump assembly. Ebert, 54, is son of the first president of the German republic set up after World War I.

FREE ELECTION SET FOR BERLIN

This One Russians Can't Stop or Control; Scheduled Tomorrow.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Dec. 4—Western Berliners vote tomorrow for a new city administration in their "Island of Freedom" 100 miles inside the Soviet army's ramparts in Europe.

Blockaded Berlin is going to have a legal election that the Russians couldn't stop.

The ballot is merely a list of three anti-Communist parties competing for municipal jobs.

But the east-west struggle for Germany has made the local political contest a straw in the wind to show which side the Germans prefer.

If a high percentage of voters appears at the polls, the United States, Britain and France will claim German indorsement of their fight against Russian efforts to Sovietize Berlin.

If the voting is relatively meager, Communists will hail it as a vindication of Russian efforts to force the western allies out of the city.

But no western observer expects the Communists to admit a reverse, no matter how many Berliners ignore their demand to boycott the election.

The Communist gangs have been attacking opposition political meetings all week. But if the vote is heavy, past tactics suggest the Communists will cry fraud by "reactionary war-mongers."

Europe has never seen an election like this before.

It is taking place in two-thirds of the gaunt, ruined city, the U. S., British and French sectors which have been under land blockade by the Russian armed forces since June. The other third is held by Russia.

Overhead there is the almost continual drone of American and British military cargo planes moving in the food and coal which keep alive what Berliners call the "island of freedom."

MERCHANTS STOCK CHRISTMAS TREES

Traditional Symbol of Yule Season Arrives in Marion.

The traditional Christmas tree symbolic of the spirit of the observance in American homes appeared in Marion marts today.

Shipments of the fragrant fir trees mostly from New England and Michigan forests contain a good selection in size and type, dealers indicate.

By the latter part of next week many stores will have their supply on display.

Many families will dig into their pockets for amounts ranging from 75 cents to $5, depending upon the size and quality of the tree they desire.

The small table size tree will be available from about 75 cents up, with 10 to 15 footers bringing $5 or more.

Most merchants will have the usual variety of tree including the slender conical spruce which a few weeks ago was the only sized tree. For those who like the woodsy scent, the balsam, less bushy and full of many, will be the year. In addition, supplies from nursery stock and from growers who specialize in Christmas tree trees will be sold out the selection here.

Despite the supply will be fairly plentiful.

"SELECTED" MAYOR. New rump mayor of Berlin's Soviet zone, Friedrich Ebert (rear middle) stands with a group of new magistrates which he heads. Angered by western refusal to call off scheduled elections and fearful of a Red repulse at the polls, Soviet authorities severed their zone to set up the rump government of "selected" officials.

Dr. Burkhart Addresses Youth Conference Opening

Approximately 300 young people from throughout Ohio are attending the three-day Ohio Christian Youth Council conference which opened at Epworth Methodist church last night. Other delegations are expected to arrive today, it was reported. The conference will continue through Sunday afternoon.

An opening service of worship was held last night, and Dr. Roy Burkhart, Columbus pastor and state youth leader, spoke. His message was related to the conference theme, "The Creative Community." Prelude was by Miss Maye Evangeline Lawrence, Epworth organist. Invocation was by Rev. Fred Doty of Columbus, and readings were by various members of the conference. Scripture read included Mark 10 and Luke 2, the Christmas story, and there was a recorded solo of "The Lord's Prayer."

"We have either 'chaos' or 'community' in our hearts," Dr. Burkhart declared. "We should strive for community. Too many hearts are set so that other hearts are barred from them. We have a lot of growing to do to gain this sence of community, but only in having the spirit of community can we really be the hope of the world for the future.

Value of Conference

"In such conferences as these, we can get this sense of community. Though we cannot really 'see' a person or family, we can 'experience' person or family relationship. A true family is a beloved community, and we should strive for that oneness with God that only a community can bring. The church is made up of 'cells' or persons who are the community—that is, the true church. Too many churches are just 'neighbors,' not communities. Those who can draw a circle where no one is barred create the future hope of the world. We of America today have a dynamic force or power of creative love. We should go away from this conference decided to maintain a peace offensive and thus obtain a substitute for war."

The service was closed with a period of prayer "asking for divine guidance for the conference and future life away from the conference," followed by dismissal and dispersal of the delegates to the Marion homes assigned them for lodging. Miss Virginia Howard, local chairman, announced today that Marion families who expressed willingness to entertain delegates and who have not yet received their number may yet have lodgers assigned as other delegations register.

Banquet Tonight

This morning, an opening worship service was followed by a talk by Dr. Burkhart, and discussion groups, and lunch was served at First Evangelical and Reformed church, after which discussion groups reconvened at Epworth church.

Tonight a banquet will be served at the Masonic temple, with Rev. Dennis Savage, director of the Christian Youth Conference of North America, as the speaker. This will be followed by recreation at the YMCA at 9.

The Sunday schedule will include attendance of delegates at any Sunday school of their particular choice, and a service of worship, with Rev. Savage speaking, will be at 10:45 at Epworth church.

A box luncheon will be served at Trinity Baptist church at noon, and closing service of worship will be at 1:30, when a religious drama, "Dust of the Road," will be presented by the Wesley Players group of Ohio university at Athens.

Person Who Slipped Reds U.S. Secrets Known, Says Prober

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—The house un-American activities committee said today it has dug up evidence identifying the person who slipped secret state department papers to a self-described Communist agent before the war.

Robert E. Stripling, the committee's chief investigator, told reporters:

"We expect to show conclusively the source of these documents from the state department to Chambers."

Whittaker Chambers, now a senior editor of Time magazine, told the committee last summer he was an agent for the Red underground in Washington in the 1930's.

Stripling said "very important" new documents have been seized. He said these are in addition to microfilms of state department papers Chambers had secreted in a pumpkin on his Maryland farm and to more documents obtained from Chambers last night.

Stripling said the committee has served a subpoena on Chambers' lawyer, Richard F. Cleveland of Baltimore, for documents and sworn statements taken in connection with a libel suit pending against Chambers there.

This $75,000 damage suit against Chambers was filed by Alger Hiss, former high state department official. Chambers has testified Hiss was among the members of a pre-war Red underground in the capital.

Chambers first made the accusation at congressional spy hearings last summer. Hiss denied them. When Chambers repeated some of them in a broadcast, Hiss sued him for libel.

Obtained by Subpoena

Stripling told a reporter he couldn't disclose the nature of the new documents, but said they were very imporant and were obtained by subpoena.

He said they didn't come from Whittaker Chambers, who has testified he was a former Communist courier. Chambers now is an editor of Time magazine.

And there was none of the earlier drama that surrounded the taking over of 10-year-old midget films of secret state department papers which Chambers hid in a hollow pumpkin on his Maryland farm.

Stripling said he was getting in touch at once with Rep. Mundt (R-SD) about the next steps in the search for spies.

In addition to the microfilms, the committee says it has obtained more important papers from Chambers.

State department officials said they had seen none of the new material obtained by the committee. Therefore, they said, they had no comment.

Rep. Mundt (R-SD), a committee member, said the microfilms alone provide "definite proof" of the existence of "one of the most extensive espionage rings in the history of the United States."

The state and justice departments had no immediate comment.

In a statement last night, Mundt also said:

▶The committee had uncovered "shocking" evidence that before the war "secret documents of direct significance to our national security were fed out of the state department by a member of the Communist underground to Whittaker Chambers." The underground member wasn't identified.

▶There are indications that "a final conclusion is imminent in the long-discussed Hiss-Chambers espionage case."

▶He is trying to line up other members to revive the spy hearings at the earliest possible date.

Mundt indicated that microfilm copies of top-secret diplomatic notes and reports were turned over to "Russian Communist agents." Whether the films obtained from Chambers were additional copies, he didn't say.

But he did add:

"These documents are of such startling and significant importance, reveal such a vast network of communist espionage within the state department, that they far exceed anything yet brought before the committee in its 10-year history."

Climaxes 10-Year Hunt

He said U. S. agents have been after the microfilms for 10 years, and that the committee now has them under guard around the clock. Robert E. Stripling, chief committee investigator, related how a subpoena was served on Chambers Thursday ordering him

OHIO COVERED BY HEAVY FOG

1 Death, Many Traffic Snarls Result; Sunny Weekend Predicted.

By International News Service

Dense gray fog which made the headlines so much early in November was back in the weather picture again today.

Heavy mist covered all of Ohio, as well as surrounding states, last night and early today, stalling traffic and resulting in at least one death.

Eighty-year-old William Deatwood, an inmate of the Hamilton home, was killed when struck by an automobile on a fog-covered road in Cincinnati.

The fog was a result of ground radiation brought on by a high-pressure area covering the state, according to Forecaster Howard French.

French said, however, that indications are for a pleasant and comfortable weekend despite the inauspicious start. Sunny and mild is the forecast for today.

He said the sun would dissipate the fog by early afternoon. Temperatures will remain around the 40-mark tonight after climbing to unseasonable highs in the 60's today.

Sunday also will be sunny and mild, at least until early evening when light rain is expected in some part of the state.

40 Cars Pile Into Each Other in Fog

By International News Service

NILES, O., Dec. 4—Nearly 40 cars piled into each other on state route 46 south of Niles today as a dense fog cut visibility to less than 20 feet.

According to eyewitnesses Ben James, editor of the Niles Daily Times, "it was impossible to see the cars in front of you until it was too late, despite the fact that everyone was travelling at a snail's pace."

He said the cars were strung out on the route for more than a hundred yards. Oddly enough, no one was injured although damage to the cars was expected to run into the thousands of dollars. Ten cars had to be towed away.

The committee delayed until tomorrow afternoon a decision on what should be done with unfinished items on its agenda.

"BURNING WHEEL" FALLS FROM SKY

By The Associated Press

BELLEFONTAINE, O., Dec. 4—A "burning wheel" fell in an outlying residential area here last night.

William H. Reynolds told police it flashed past a window in his home, "all afire and spinning like mad."

Several other persons saw the "wheel"—which was about the size of an automobile's—burning intensely on the ground. Reynolds was the only one who reported seeing it in the air. It had burned itself out by the time police arrived.

Officers collected bits of burned metal, however, and today Police Chief A. D. Paden said the metal "looks like magnesium."

He theorized a magnesium flare was released accidentally from an airplane passing over the city. There were no reports of emergency plane landings in the area.

DISASTER HITS CRAFT IN SEA NEAR SHANGHAI

Overcrowded Ship Blows Up In Frenzied Exodus of 4,250 from China.

By The Associated Press

SHANGHAI, Dec. 4—A small ship crammed with Chinese war refugees exploded and sank just outside Shanghai late last night, with a toll expected to exceed 3,200 lives.

If reports are even approximately accurate, it was the worst marine disaster in modern history.

Some 4,250 Chinese were reported aboard the ship, the China Merchant Steamship company's 2,099-ton Kiangya. It blew up amidships and sank in less than an hour near the mouth of the Yangtze river.

A company spokesman said the Kiangya had a capacity of 1,186 passengers but that it was "officially" carrying 2,250—mostly from Nanking. He said another estimated 2,000 clambered aboard at Shanghai. There seemed no way of determining just how many.

Late tonight, as six Chinese rescue boats bobbed about the shattered superstructure extending out of the chill waters, about 200 bodies were reported recovered and at least 2,000 were reported still missing.

Cause Unknown

Between 100 and 400 have been reported rescued thus far.

Cause of the blast had not been determined. The welter of reports advanced several reasons—Communist sabotage, an underwater mine, or an explosion of overstrained boilers.

It was the first major disaster in the frenzied exodus from Shanghai and Nanking. Both cities are menaced by Chinese Communist armies now engaged in critical—possibly decisive—battles less than 200 miles northwest of Nanking.

The steamship had sailed from Shanghai enroute to Ningpo (Ninghsien), about 200 miles south of here. It was jammed with Shanghai and Nanking residents attempting to reach the relative safety of Chekiang province.

A company spokesman said the Kiangya's capacity was 1,186 passengers. He added, however, that thousands of refugees had swarmed aboard on each of the ship's trips in recent weeks despite efforts to hold a safety limit.

Carried Heavy Loads

The spokesman said the vessel had carried at least 4,000 passengers on each of its previous trips, and that there were at least that many aboard this time.

Survivors—some of whom were injured—reported the ship went down shortly after a tremendous explosion. One survivor said it might have been sabotage, because he noticed two junks passing the stern of the ship a few minutes earlier.

He said they might have loosed a mine. Shipping men were inclined to blame overstrained boilers for the blast.

The ship's wireless was unaccountably out of commission, and its plight was not learned until a passing coastal vessel, the Hwa Foo, sighted the smoking ship.

Armies Move Toward Battle Near Suchow

By The Associated Press

NANKING, Dec. 4 — Chinese Nationalist and Communist armies moved tonight toward a head-on collision south of Suchow—a new battle which may determine China's fate.

Five Communist columns under Gen. Chen Yi eased their pressure on the government's new Hwai river defense line, 100 miles northwest of Nanking, and were heading north to meet the three Nationalist army groups that abandoned Suchow Wednesday.

Chen Yi's force was estimated at 150,000. Three other Red columns, totalling possibly 75,000 men, already are engaging the 250,000-man Suchow garrison about 30 miles south of the big base.

In addition to those Communist forces, two other columns were reported approaching the battle scene from the east. Thus, it appeared the three government army groups — constituting the core of Chiang Kai-shek's strength in East China—will be considerably outnumbered.

While official attention was riveted on the impending battle, the frantic scramble of Chinese to leave Nanking and Shanghai continued.

For the first time in days, there was considerable optimism in official Nanking circles regarding the military situation northwest of here. Officials expressed belief the forthcoming fight south of Suchow will result in a government victory.

PALESTINE PROPOSAL OK'D BY UN GROUP

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Dec 4—The much-amended British proposal for conciliation of the Palestine problem was approved narrowly today in the United Nations political committee. The margin was far too narrow to assure its adoption by the general assembly.

The 58-nation political committee approved the British resolution as a whole by a vote of 25 to 21, with nine abstentions and three members marked absent.

A two-thirds majority is necessary for approval in the general assembly.

The political committee voted earlier to place selection of a three-nation Palestine conciliation commission in the hands of the Big Five powers — the United States, Russia, Britain, France and China.

The British resolution would set up this three-nation commission to adjust outstanding differences between Jews and Arabs in the Holy Land.

The committee knocked from the British proposal earlier a section binding the commission to use the 1947 partition plan and the Bernadotte report as references in fixing of boundaries of Israel and Arab Palestine.

The committee also voted down a recommendation of Count Folke Bernadotte, the slain mediator, that Arab Palestine might be joined to neighboring Trans-Jordan.

Truman Piano Duet Wows 'Em At Press Club

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—The piano team of President Truman and daughter Margaret wowed 'em.

They played a duet last night —"The Jenny Lind Polka"—at a National Press club dinner for fathers and daughters where they were honor guests.

The crowd loved it. And no one had a better time than the Trumans.

"Daddy taught me this when I was about 10," Margaret explained, "and I don't think we have played it since."

A singer of some renown, Miss Truman got a big laugh when she said before starting the duet:

"I do belong to a union, so I got special dispensation to do this with a non-union member."

Then they went at it, slowly, deliberately. And when they were done they got a big ovation.

Introduced as the "Traveling Trumans," the President and his daughter were only one of a number of acts in the two hours of entertainment.

Postpones Trial Of Logan Co. Hunter

BELLEFONTAINE, O., Dec. 4—Mayor Roy Howell of Russels Point today postponed until Dec. 9 the trial of Otto Zimmerman of Belle Center, accused of shooting game within 150 feet of a fire on his own land near Indian Lake Nov. 15.

Zimmerman pleaded innocent and posted $200 bond Nov. 18. He was granted a continuance until today at a hearing Nov. 27.

Ward McDuffee, a neighbor of Zimmerman, said more than 50 neighbors planned to testify in behalf of the defendant.

YOUTH IS ACQUITTED OF DRUNKEN DRIVING

Found Not Guilty by Jury in Municipal Court.

Gene Edward Ruth, 19, of near Marion was found "not guilty" late yesterday by a jury of eight women and four men of a charge of drunken driving in municipal court.

Testimony in the case required four hours. The jury however took only 20 minutes to reach its verdict.

Eight witnesses were introduced by the defense while the state used five witnesses.

Walter D. Moore of the Marion law firm of Moore and Myers was defense attorney while George Piacentino, police prosecutor, pleaded the state's case.

The state charged Ruth was intoxicated when a car driven by him and a car driven by Merle Wilson of 361 Clinton street collided on route 529 at 3:24 a. m. June 20. Dr. Martin Weinbaum, who examined Ruth following the accident testified Ruth was intoxicated. State Patrolman Hayth, who arrested Ruth and two other occupants of Wilson's car testified Ruth was drunk, his speech thickened, and that he staggered when he got out of his car after the crash.

Two passengers in Ruth's car at the time of the collision stated he was not drunk. They freely admitted Ruth had drunk six bottles of 3.2 beer over a six-hour period prior to the collision, but that he was not drunk.

Attorney Moore introduced evidence to show Ruth had an allergy to oats which reddened his eyes and that Ruth had spent the day prior to the accident grinding oats for feed. Dr. Weinbaum stated under cross examination it would be possible for Ruth's eyes to be dilated from fear or from being in darkness prior to his examination.

The defense admitted the possibility of Ruth having staggered after the wreck adding that he had suffered a leg injury in the collision and quite possibly did stagger as a result of this injury.

This was the first trial of a defendant of drunken driving charge before a jury here in recent date, court attaches reported today.

Joseph C. Little, Cleveland attorney who is a member of the Ohio selection committee for the scholarships, said the interviews would be conducted Wednesday and Thursday.

GROCER GUILTY IN "HOT HAM" TRIAL

By The Associated Press

LANCASTER, O., Dec. 4 — A Fairfield county common pleas court jury yesterday found Marion M. Nihiser guilty of buying and receiving $30 worth of stolen meat. Nihiser was the first "hot ham" defendant to face trial.

The all-male jury, in fixing value of the meat at $30, reduced the charge against Nihiser to a misdemeanor instead of grand larceny as charged by the state.

Judge Harry Kilburger deferred sentence, which may be a fine of $200, 30 days in jail, or both.

The jury deliberated two hours and 20 minutes. It found Nihiser innocent on the first count of a two-count indictment. That count accused the manager of the R. and J. Market of buying and receiving eight to 10 hams last May 3.

In the second count, on which he was found guilty, the state had set the value of the meat at $50. Theft or reception of stolen goods in value of $35 or more is grand larceny. Such conviction carries a sentence of one to seven years.

Judge Kilburger gave counsel three days to file objections before giving sentence.

The second of the "hot ham" cases comes to trail next Tuesday before Judge Kilburger. The defendant will be Dale Lanis of Baltimore, operator of an independent restaurant in the Fairfield Paper Co. He is charged with buying and receiving stolen meat, valued at about $100, last March 1.

The "hot ham" cases stemmed from arrest of three Columbus men last summer on charges of stealing meat from the Columbus plant of Swift and Co. Authorities charged some of the stolen meat was disposed of in Lancaster and Fairfield county.

In addition to Nihiser, 11 others in the Lancaster vicinity were indicted for buying or receiving stolen meat.

FIRE ROUTS 1,000 AT NAVAL BUILDING

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Dec. 4 — Fire swept sections of the first three floors of the nine-story Fargo naval building early today driving more than 1,000 sailors and officers to the street.

Three sailors were injured fighting the blaze before firemen arrived. None appeared to be seriously hurt. Several were reported overcome by smoke. They were treated at the barracks' hospital.

Naval attaches said the fire apparently started on the second floor and burst into first and third floor quarters before it was controlled after a two-hour battle.

The structure houses First Naval district headquarters. Officers and sailors sleeping quarters are in the building.

A seaman discovered the flames. He wakened all in the barracks. Three alarms brought fire fighting equipment from many sections of the city.

SECRET

(A) to produce the microfilms and (B) to turn up at the new hearings that are being planned.

He said Chambers led two committee investigators to his Maryland farm where the microfilms were cached in a hollowed-out pumpkin kept behind the house.

Yesterday, he said, more documents were obtained from Chambers.

Stripling wouldn't discuss their significance. Nor would he say where the committee got its tip that Chambers had the 10-year-old microfilms. Apparently, he said, documents were slipped out of the state department, copied on the film, and then returned.

Says Russia Didn't Get Microfilms

By International News Service

BALTIMORE, Dec. 4—Whittaker Chambers said today that microfilms of top secret state department documents found on his Maryland farm never reached Russian spies for whom they were intended.

Mr. Chambers told the inside story of the secret documents vital to the security of the United States in an exclusive interview with the Baltimore News-Post.

The film capsules were found yesterday in a hollowed-out pumpkin on Chambers' farm in Carroll county near Westminster, Md. The microfilms, described as copies of document "of tremendous importance," were taken from the pumpkin by U. S. government agents and were turned over to the house un-American activities committee.

The committee said that the microfilms covered the period from 1935 to 1938 inclusive.

Mr. Chambers said that:

1. The microfilm never reached Russian agents, although they had been intended for Soviet representatives.

2. Mr. Chambers hid them in the pumpkin because he feared Communist agents would raid the farm in his absence and seize the films.

3. Prior to being taken to the Carroll county farm, the microfilms had been secreted in Brooklyn, N. Y.

4. The films came into Mr. Chambers' possession at the time he was considering quitting the Communist party.

Mr. Chambers, a senior editor of Time magazine, testified last summer before the house un-American investigating committee that he had once been a member of the Communist party, and he named Alger Hiss, formerly a high official of the government, as a member of a Communist "underground."

2 KNOTTY PROBLEMS FACE CHURCH GROUP

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Dec 4 The biennial convention of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ opened yesterday but two of the knottier problems still rest with the organization's executive committee.

One is a resolution calling for abolishing of the house committee on un-American activities That one was handed outright to the executive council for disposition later.

The other is a resolution calling upon the United States to form no military alliance with the Franco government in Spain It was approved in principle by the convention but the text of it was referred back to the department of international justice and good will for study.

The convention went all out in support of a proposal for elimination of racial segregation

It approved President Truman's civil rights program and said "the flagrant violation of human rights in our generations has outraged Christian feeling. All of the rich gifts which god imparts to man should be available to all without discrimination as to race color, sex, birth, nationality, or creed"

"I plan to place greater emphasis on evangelism to win new church members even though Protestant church membership now is the highest in American history," said the senior Bishop of the Evangelical United Brethren church

Harding Cagers Nipped in Opener, 37-34, by Bexley

Hosts Wax Hot in Final Quarter To Pull Ahead of Presidents.

By GEORGE SCOTT

In a teeter-totter tilt in which the lead changed hands five times the Bexley Lions downed the Harding basketball squad in its opener at the Columbus suburb last night, 37-34

Jack Daum, Harding center, was the evening's high man with 13 points. He tossed three baskets and dropped in seven free ones out of nine attempts. Jack, who is the brother of forward Merle Daum, is the only sophomore on the varsity team. Doug Wolcott, Lion forward, was second with 11. Of the Prexies Tom Clark and Dick Thomas were second with six points each.

To a certain extent history repeated itself in last night's contest. A year ago it was a fourth quarter parade of buckets that spelled defeat for the Presidents, 37-35, just a one point difference in score. Again last night it was that last period that did the damage. After the 'Cats had snatched the lead away from the Harding men on long shots by Bob Thall and Tom Montague, they went into the final chapter on the top side of a 23-21 lead. Then by working the ball in close and shooting from underneath the backboard the Lions pushed in seven points before Clark retaliated with a successful free throw attempt.

Nine-Point Lead

This gave the Lions a nine-point lead in just a few minutes and put the Prexies on the bottom of the stairs slugging their way up. But the Harding men made a battle out of it. Jack Daum then racked up eight of his 13 points and Clark and Thomas each swished one bucket as the game ended with Harding behind by one field goal and a free throw. That seven point fourth quarter drive put the ribbon on the contest for Bexley.

Harding jumped into an early lead when Clark, Merle Daum, and Dick Wolfe found the hoop to give the Marion men a six-point advantage. At the end of the quarter they still led, 8-4, but by the end of the half the Bexley squad had pulled into a 14-all tie. Throughout the first half coach Kenney Somerlot used a two-team system. His first squad consisted of Dick Clark, Merle Daum, Jack Daum, and guards Dick Thomas, Bill Buckingham, and Dick Wolfe. Replacing them was a completely new team of Clarence Smith, Tom Ballinger Roger Andrews, Dick Leffler, and Don Johnson.

Robert Bernlohr, classy little Bexley guard, is the son of Bill Bernlohr, present head coach of Capital university. The elder Bernlohr also went to Bexley and was a star in basketball and on the gridiron. Coach George Keel said he played against Bernlohr's Capital forces when the Harding assistant coach was a member of Ohio Northern's grid squad.

Sink Long Shots

The story of last night's Harding loss can be explained simply. Bexley suddenly began to sink shots they had been missing all evening—most of them long ones. Harding attempts hit the rim and bounced out. More than anything else this brief period at the end of the third and beginning of the fourth quarters when the Lions couldn't miss explains the margin of Harding defeat.

The reserve game was a real thriller. With George Keel's men leading by five points the 'Cats' reserves bounced back to tie up the contest in the final minute of play, 26-26. Then in an overtime period the Bexley seconds tipped in 12 points to Harding's four for the 39-30 victory. Doug Brokaw was first in points scored for both teams, 11.

Tuesday night Harding will play its first home game of the season at Edison gym and the opponent is Galion.

BRAVES' DARK NAMED '48 ROOKIE OF YEAR

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 — Alvin Dark, the Boston Braves' talented young shortstop, today was named rookie of the year for 1948 by the Baseball Writers Association.

The 25-year-old freshman who hit .324 for the pennant-winning Braves won by a comfortable margin Dark received 27 of the 48 votes by the same writers' committees who selected the most valuable player in each major league.

Gene Bearden, southpaw pitching star of Cleveland's World Series triumph, was second. He polled eight votes However, all balloting was done during the last week of the season and thus did not take into consideration World Series performances. In the regular season he won 17 and lost seven.

Bearden, of course, flashed brighest at the very end of the year. After defeating the Boston Red Sox in the tie playoff game to decide the pennant, he shut out the Braves in the third series game. Then he came back in a relief role to save the day for Bob Lemon in the sixth game when the Tribe won the series.

Third honors went to Richie Ashburn, the Philadelphia Phils' tow-headed speedster. He had seven votes. Ashburn, a "sleeper" in the rookie crop was on the Toronto roster until a few days before the season opened. He jostled Harry Walker, the 1947 National league batting champ, out of a job and hit .330, second only to Stan Musial, the champ.

Ashburn broke a bone in his hand in August and missed the last two months of the season. If it hadn't been for that he might have been even more outstanding. However, he was one of the real "finds" of the year, jumping to Class A to the majors without trouble.

ASCOT PARK PLANS TO LENGTHEN TRACK

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Dec. 4 — Plans for enlarging Ascot Park, in northeastern Ohio, from a three-quarters of a mile to a mile track were laid before the state racing association yesterday by D. E Cronin, the park's president and general manager.

Cronin said his organization planned to construct a chute at the head of the home stretch to place the track in the full mile category. He also told the commission the track plans to install a totalizator in the mutuel department.

Yesterday's meeting, between running race track operators and the commission, struck a snag when Cronin asked for 36 days for Ascot, June 13 through July 23.

These dates conflicted with requests from other tracks in the Cleveland area. The commission will grant dates in about two weeks, Chairman O. C. Belt said.

In a wild windup to tag team wrestling at the Marion Armory Thursday night Joe Wolfe was thrown out of the ring and Dale Wayne and Dutch Schultz worked Steve Nenoff over to win the match in two out of three falls.

R. C. Harrison, a Yogi, entertained the crowd by such feats as letting a fan pound a 100-pound weight on his chest as he lay on a bed of spikes, allowing four women to sew buttons on his arms and chest, walking on broken glass, and shaving with a blow torch. In the regular tangling events Steve Nenoff beat Dale Wayne with a crab hold and Joe Wolfe took Dutch Schultz with a rolling body scissors.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Dec. 4 — John Carroll's Blue Streaks were "ready and rarin' to go" today as they went through a brief workout in preparation for their Great Lakes bowl game tomorrow with Canisius college. Coach Herb Eisele gave the description of his squad's condition. He added that "all of us really want to win this one and we'll be throwing the book at Canisius."

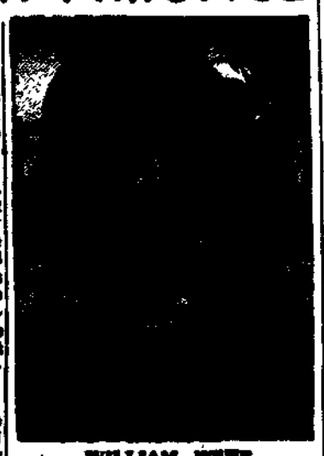
Denison Center On Little All-America

Special to The Star

GRANVILLE, O., Dec. 4—Denison university again placed a football player on the Little All-America first team following its second consecutive undefeated and untied season, according to the list released Friday from New York's Associated Press office.

William Wehr of Barnesville, 24-year-old bulwark of the Big Red line and a 60-minute player in nearly every game, won the coveted honor of being named center on the first team. His teammate, who shares co-captain honors, Edward Rupp of Granville, was named half-back on the third team and William Hart of East Cleveland was given honorable mention as end.

Coach W. W. "Woody" Hayes has described Wehr of Barnesville as "the best all-around lineman I have ever coached." Outstanding on offensive play, Wehr was agile enough to pull out the line and lead the down-field blocking. Brilliant also on defense, he intercepted two passes and recovered five fumbles during the season. His break-through in the Muskingum game to block the kick for point after touchdown kept the Denison undefeated and untied record intact.



WILLIAM WEHR

Wehr and Rupp are seniors and Hart is a junior.

PREVIEWS OF COMING ATTRACTIONS AT THE THEATERS

LANA TURNER PLAYS the beautiful and wicked Lady de Winter, and Gene Kelly the dashing, dueling D'Artagnan in the M-G-M technicolor version of Alexandre Dumas' famed novel, "The Three Musketeers," which will be shown Sunday through Thursday at the Palace theater. Also starred in the outstanding cast are June Allyson, Van Heflin and Angela Lansbury.

"Three Musketeers" At Palace Theater

One of the great classics of literature, Alexandre Dumas' "The Three Musketeers," adapted for the screen, will be shown Sunday thorugh Thursday at the Palace theater. Featuring one of the year's top casts, the M-G-M technicolor production stars Lana Turner, Gene Kelly, June Allyson, Van Heflin and Angela Lansbury, with Frank Morgan, Vincent Price, Keenan Wynn, John Sutton and Gig Young.

Set against a background of early Seventeenth century Europe, "The Three Musketeers" is a story of court intrigue and its conspiracy which would have lost the King of France his throne except for the deathless courage of four men.

It tells the tale of the daring man from Saxony, D'Artagnan, who joins the Musketeers, becomes the first swordsman of France, pledges his loyalty to the King against the sinister ways of Richelieu, the ambitious prime minister, and Lady de Winter, and who becomes involved in an ill-fated romance with Constance, lady-in-waiting to the Queen.

Lana Turner is seen as Lady de Winter who, when she attempts to ensnare D'Artagnan as she does every other man, meets a deserved fate at the hands of an executioner. Gene Kelly plays the role of D'Artagnan. June Allyson is seen as Constance, Van Heflin as the romantic Athos, and Angela Lansbury as Queen Anne of France.

In suporting roles, Frank Morgan is cast as the weakling Louis XIII, Vincent Price as the sinister Richelieu, Keenan Wynn as Planchet, John Sutton as the Duke of Buckingham and Gig Young as Porthos.

A double feature, "Pardon My Sarong" and "Give Us Wings," will be shown Sunday through Wednesday at the Ohio theater. The former stars Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, with Virginia Bruce, Robert Paige, Leif Erikson, Lionel Atwill, Nan Wynn and Samuel S. Hinds heading the supporting cast.

In "Pardon My Sarong," Abbott and Costello are seen as bus drivers who later become castaways on an uncharted south seas island. The story in the film takes the comedians halfway around the globe in a combination chase, treasure hunt and encounter with a tribe of south seas dancing beauties.

While working as bus drivers in Chicago, the two get bored with the monotonous routine and leap at a chance to take a charter trip to Los Angeles, ferrying a wealthy playboy and 10 cute chorus girls. There, they board a yacht to escape the law, and head for Honolulu as sailors.

Showing Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be a double feature, "Korvett K-225" and "Wings Over Honolulu."

Until the eyes of the world were turned toward the manger in which the Prince of God lay, the world groped its way in the midst of haunting fears and specter-like superstitions. Now since that event of the first Christmas was heralded by the glad song of the hovering angels, the world has had reason to sing. The Ruler of Life, whose purpose was goodness and praise and salvation is with us as we trust and adore Him, and permit His presence. Honor Him anew and be inspired afresh to proclaim Him King of Kings and Lord of Lords in your life, your home, our distraught world, by witnessing the presentation of the superb musical production, the MESSIAH.

Final Crushing Drive Brings Surrender Of Germany on May 7

* * *

By DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

(Copyright, 1948, by Doubleday and Company, Inc.)

* * *

26. The German Surrender.

SIMULTANEOUSLY with all these operations on the north equally decisive movements were progressing in the south. The principal line of advance was southeast down the Danube Valley toward Linz, with the purpose of joining up with the Russians in Austria.

Since Bradley's offensive in the center had already gained its objectives we had the Third Army available to conduct this drive while the Sixth Army Group gave its entire attention to overrunning the Redoubt area farther to the south and west.

With his main forces pushing down the Danube, Patton's Third Army was now reinforced by the V Corps from Hodges' army. Patton directed the V to push eastward into Czechoslovakia. The corps captured Pilsen May 6.

* * *

IN THIS AREA the Russian forces were rapidly advancing from the east and careful co-ordination was again necessary. By agreement we directed the American troops to occupy the line Pilsen-Karlsbad, while south of Czechoslovakia the agreed line of junction ran down the Budejovice-Linz railroad and from there along the valley of the Enns river.

The final major move of Patch's Seventh Army in Devers' army group began April 22. On the right flank the XV Corps moved down the Danube and turned southward to strike at Munich, the place of origin of the Nazi movement.

That great city was captured April 30. On May 4 the 3d Division of the same corps captured Berchtesgaden. Other troops occupied Salzburg. The defenses of the entire sector disintegrated.

Throughout the front principal objectives in all sectors were attained by the end of April or their early capture was a certainty. The great advances had the effect of multiplying many of the administrative, maintenance, and organizational problems with which we constantly had to wrestle.

Again a tremendous strain was placed upon our supply lines. Distant and fast-moving columns were sometimes almost solely dependent upon air supply, and during April we kept 1,500 transport planes constantly working in our supply system. They became known as "flying boxcars" and were never more essential than in these concluding stages of the war.

Besides these planes we stripped and converted many heavy bombers to the same purpose. During the month of April the air forces delivered to the front lines 60,000 tons of freight, in which was included 10,000,000 gallons of gasoline.

* * *

ON EACH RETURN TRIP from the front our transports and converted bombers brought back planeloads of recaptured Allied prisoners. These men were concentrated at convenient camps for rehabilitation and early transfer to the homelands. Near Le Havre, in one camp alone, called Lucky Strike, we had at one time 47,000 recovered American prisoners.

One day I had an appointment to meet five United States senators. As they walked into my office I received a telegram from a staff officer, stating that a newspaper article alleged the existence at the Lucky Strike camp of intolerable conditions. The story said that men were crowded together, were improperly fed, lived under unsanitary conditions, and were treated with an entire lack of sympathy and understanding.

Even if the report should prove partially true it represented a very definite failure to carry out strict orders somewhere along the line. I determined to go see for myself and told my pilot to get my plane ready for instant departure. I turned to the five senators, apologized for my inability to keep my appointment, and explained why it was necessary for me to depart instantly for Lucky Strike. I told them, however, that if they desired to talk with me they could accompany me on the trip. They all accepted with alacrity.

In less than two hours we arrived at Lucky Strike and started our inspection. We roamed around the camp and found no basis for the startling statement made in the disturbing telegram. There were only two points concerning which our men exhibited any impatience. The first of these was the food. It was of good quality and well cooked but the doctors would not permit salt, pepper, or any other kind of seasoning to be used because they were considered damaging to men who had undergone virtual starvation over periods ranging from weeks to years.

* * *

THE OTHER understandable complaint was the length of time that men were compelled to stay in the camp before securing transportation to America. This was owing to lack of ships. Freights, which constituted the vast proportion of our overseas transport service at that stage of the war, were not suited for transportation of passengers.

So pleased did the soldiers seem to be by our visit that they followed us around the camp by the hundreds. When we finally returned to the airplane we found that an enterprising group had installed a loudspeaker system, with the microphone at the door of my plane.

In hundreds of places under almost every kind of war condition I had talked to American soldiers, both individually and in groups up to the size of a division. But on that occasion I was momentarily at a loss for something to say. Every one of those present had undergone privation beyond the imagination of the normal human.

Then I had a happy thought. It was an idea for speeding up the return of these men to the homeland. So I took the microphone and told the assembled multitude there were two methods by which they could go home. The first of these was to load on every returning troopship the maximum number for which the ship was designed. This was current practice.

Then I suggested that, since submarines were no longer a menace, we could place on each of these returning ships double the normal capacity, but that this would require one man to sleep in the daytime so that another soldier could have his bunk during the night.

I asked the crowd which one of the two schemes they would prefer me to follow. The roar of approval for the double-loading plan left no doubt as to their desires.

When the noise had subsided I said to them: "Very well, that's the way we shall do it. But I must warn you men that there are five United States senators accompanying me today. Consequently when you get home it is going to do you no good to write letters to the papers or to your senator complaining about overcrowding on returning ships. You have made your own choice and so now you will have to like it."

THE SHOUT of laughter that went up left no doubt that the men were completely happy with their choice.

Some weeks before the final surrender we received intimations that various individuals of prominence in Germany were seeking ways and means of accomplishing capitulation. In no instance did any of these roundabout messages involve Hitler himself. On the contrary, each sender was so fearful of Nazi wrath that he was as much concerned in keeping secret his own part in the matter as he was in achieving the surrender of the German armies.

The first direct suggestion of surrender that reached SHAEF came from Himmler, who approached Count Bernadotte of Sweden in an attempt to get in touch with Prime Minister Churchill. On April 26, I received a long message from the Prime Minister, discussiong Himmler's proposal to surrender the western front. I regarded the suggestion as a last desperate attempt to split the Allies and so informed Mr. Churchill.

I strongly urged that no proposition be accepted or entertained unless it involved a surrender of all German forces on all fronts. My view was that any suggestion that the Allies would accept from the German Government a surrender of only their western forces would instantly create complete misunderstanding with the Russians and bring about a situation in which the Russians could justifiably accuse us of bad faith.

If the Germans desired to surrender an army, that was a tactical and military matter. Likewise, if they wanted to surrender all the forces on a given front, the German commander in the field could do so, and the Allied commander could accept; but the only way the government[illegible] many could surrender [illegible] conditions [illegible] A

The first great [illegible] came in Italy. Alexander's forces had waged a brilliant campaign throughout the year 1944 and by April 26, 1945 had placed the enemy in an impossible situation. Negotiations for local surrender began and on April 29 the German commander surrendered. All hostilities in Italy were to cease May 2.

This placed the German troops just to the north of Italy in an equally impossible situation. On May 2 the German commander requested the identity of the Allied commander he should approach in order to surrender and was told to apply to General Devers. He was warned that only unconditional surrender would be acceptable. This enemy force was known as Army Group G and comprised the German First and Nineteenth Armies. They gave up on May 5, with the capitulation to be effective May 6.

Far to the north, in the Hamburg area, the German commander also saw the hopelessness of his situation. On April 30 a German emissary appeared in Stockholm to say that Field Marshal Busch, commanding in the north, and General Lindemann, commanding in Denmark, were ready to surrender as quickly as the Allied advance reached the Baltic.

* * *

WE WERE TOLD that the Germans would refuse to surrender to the Russians but that, once the Western Allies had arrived at Lubeck and so cut off the forces in that region from the arrival of fanatical SS formations from central Germany, they would immediately surrender to us. Montgomery's forces arrived in Lubeck May 3. By then, however, a great change in the governmental structure of Germany had taken place.

Hitler had committed suicide and the tattered mantle of his authority had fallen to Admiral Doenitz. The admiral directed that all his armies everywhere should surrender to the Western Allies. Thousands of dejected German soldiers began entering our lines. On May 3 Admiral Friedeburg, who was the new head of the German Navy, came to Montgomery's headquarters.

He was accompanied by a staff officer of Field Marshal Busch. They stated that their purpose was to surrender three of their armies which had been fighting the Russians and they asked authority to pass refugees through our lines. Their sole desire was to avoid surrender to the Russians. Montgomery promptly refused to discuss a surrender on these terms and sent the German emissaries back to Field Marshal Keitel, the chief of the German high command.

I had already told Montgomery to accept the military surrender of all forces in his alloted zone of operations. Such a capitulation would be a tactical affair and the responsibility of the commander on the spot. Consequently, when Admiral Friedeburg returned to Montgomery's headquarters on May 4 with a proposal to surrender all German forces in northwest Germany, including those in Holland and Denmark, Montgomery instantly accepted.

The necessary documents were signed that day and became effective the following morning. When Devers and Montgomery received these great surrenders they made no commitments of any kind that could embarrass or limit our governments in future [illegible] ON MAY [illegible] [illegible] Major Gen[illegible] Field Mar[illegible] commanding [illegible] on the Ame[illegible] me a message [illegible] to send a p[illegible] range terms [illegible] Von Keve[illegible] only [illegible] I would enter[illegible] that did not [illegible] forces everywhere.

Friedeburg protested that he had no power to sign any such document. He was given permission to transmit a message to Doenitz, and requested that [illegible] General Jodl, was on his way to our headquarters to assist him in negotiations.

* * *

TO US IT SEEMED clear that the Germans were [illegible] time so that they could transfer behind our lines the largest possible number of German soldiers still in the field. I told General Smith to inform Jodl that unless they instantly ceased all pretense and delay I would close the entire Allied front and would, by force, prevent any more German refugees from entering our lines. I would brook no further delay in the matter.

Finally Jodl and Friedeburg drafted a cable to Doenitz requesting authority to make a complete surrender, to become effective forty-eight hours after signing. Had I agreed to this procedure the Germans could have found one excuse or another for postponing the signature and so securing additional delay. Through Smith, I informed them that the surrender would become effective forty-eight hours from midnight of that day; otherwise my threat to seal the western front would be carried out at once.

WILL ASK COLLEGE DRAFT DEFERMENT

By The United Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Selective service headquarters will be asked soon to recommend draft deferments for most college students, it was revealed today.

The appeal will be made by five committees composed of educators, engineers, geologists and other scientists.

National selective service headquarters urged its local boards a month ago to grant one-year deferments to professional students of the healing arts—those who are studying to be doctors, dentists, veterinarians or osteopaths. This request was based upon recommendations of a healing arts educational advisory committee.

The new committees now are preparing their recommendations on deferments for students in the agricultural, biological, engineering, physical and social sciences, and in the humanities. Since the humanities classification include students of literature, languages, philosophy and other liberal arts subjects, the recommendations would apply to a majority of college students.

The five committees will meet jointly to pool their recommendations under the chairmanship of Dr. M. H. Trytten of the national research council as soon as the preliminary work is done.

The dam will control drainage from the 381 square miles in the Olentangy river watershed and through operation of its six sluice gates and five sluiceways dam tender Smith will be able to regulate the flow of the river in accordance with orders from Huntington.

Will Use Radio

Orders rainfall readings, weather data and other meteorological information will be transmitted to and from the dam via special radio equipment. The radio will serve as a means of synchonizing water control at this reservoir with control at similar reservoirs on Ohio river tributaries throughout the huge river basin. Huntington will be the control center for the entire district.

The Delaware dam, constructed under the flood control act passed by the 5th congress, in addition to playing a part in Ohio river water control, has the local purpose of flood alleviation on the Olentangy and Scioto rivers which join at Columbus.

It was built by S. J. Groves and Sons, Johnston, Drake and Piper, Inc. and Bowen and McLaughlin, joint contractors. Construction, including the dam and levees, clearing the reservoir area, moving of cemeteries and landscaping and seeding will cost over $3,000,000. Cost of the nearly 6,000 acres purchased outright by the government, the additional 4,000 more for which flood easements were obtained, highway and utility line alterations, is not included in the construction cost.

In a freak mishap yesterday a large tractor-trailer van owned by Sears Roebuck Co. of Chicago and driven by Bruce Milgate 28, of 445 Pyers street knocked the northeast traffic light from its mountings on a pole at the northeast corner of North State and East Center streets. The light and lens fell to the ground but was undamaged except for a broken bracket. It was replaced at 5 p. m. yesterday by city electrical crews and is now operating again.

Hord, 34, of 315 Columbia court was backed into by a car driven by Mrs Lawrence Shaffer of near Marion while both were waiting for the traffic light at Bellefontaine avenue and South Prospect street. The Star incorrectly reported Mr Hord's car as backing into Mrs. Shaffer's car in the original item.

George Luther Miller, 33, of Springfield, O., pleaded not guilty in municipal court at 11 a. m. yesterday to a charge of speeding on North Main street. He posted a $25 bond and was released pending a hearing of his case Dec 17.

The AFL sailors' union of the Pacific, which did not strike but was idled by the walk-out of five other unions Sept. 2, refused to sail until settlement of the jurisdictional dispute.

AUTO OUTPUT SOARS AGAIN

Industry Back in High Gear After Chevrolet Closes for Change-Over.

By DAVID J. WILKIE
Associated Press Automotive Editor

DETROIT Dec 4—The auto industry got back in high gear production in gradual steps this week despite the closing of some Chevrolet assembly lines for model change-over.

United States factories built approximately 118 000 cars and trucks during the week Ward's Automotive Reports estimated the total at 118 974 vehicles Automotive News put the figure at 117,959 Last week after a holiday and some materials shortages interrupting assembly lines about 83,000 cars and trucks were built in the United States

This week's assemblies included an increasing number of Buick, Cadillac and Oldsmobile 1949 models Most details of these new models already have been disclosed, although Oldsmobile will not be formally introduced until Dec 29

Still To Come

Still to come are the 1949 Chevrolet and Pontiac models. While there will be previews for dealers and industry chroniclers formal public presentation will not be made until Jan 20 to Jan 27 when General Motors will make a complete showing of all its new cars at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York.

Buick, Cadillac and Oldsmobile have announced higher prices for their new models Industry sources quite generally expect higher tags on the 1949 Pontiac and Chevrolet cars

Both the latter two vehicles are to be entirely new. Styling and engineering details still are being withheld but there is bound to be some basic body similarity with other models in the General Motors lines.

One thing that may be said is that Chevrolet, only GM car to have both synchromesh and automatic transmission, already has built more than half its 1949 models and may have them ready before the next summer but most of the other makers will be unable to bring them until 1950 models are brought out

Chevrolet is ahead of Ford in passenger car production, apparently assuring it will hold that position through the year end That Ford reportedly is pushing to make its new model preparations interfere as little as possible with car assemblies

Need Retooling

While most of Chrysler's new models will not get into production until next month a lot of retooling must be done in the Chrysler, Desoto, Dodge and Plymouth plants Rumor has it that Dodge has been scheduled as the first of Chrysler's new model offerings

So far this year the four Chrysler divisions have built about 742 000 passenger cars and Ford's three units have produced around 670 000 But for the several weeks Ford lost in switching over to new models last spring and the difficulties encountered in regaining production volume Ford undoubtedly would be ahead of Chrysler now

Unofficial estimates have placed the Ford production loss due to the model change-over at close to 100 000 units

Early this week the assembly plants rolled out the 4,800,000th motor vehicle to be built in the United States this year. That drought 1948 assemblies above the total turned out in all of 1947 and made certain this year would be the second biggest in production in the auto industry's history.

The industry's record mark for United States output is 5,358,420 units, built in 1929 Most guesses right now are that this year's total output will fall just a little short of 5 300,000

MUSICIANS-ARTISTS FEUD DIES ON VINE

By the Associated Press

CINCINNATI Dec 4 A feud between the American Federation of Musicians and the American Guild of Variety Artists apparently died on the vine here last night

It had started three weeks ago when AFM musicians refused to play for acts with AGVA affiliation in several mid-western cities A spokesman for the musicians said the Variety Artists were using that a musicians player for their organization

Yesterday, James C Petrillo president of the musicians, sent word to AGVA to "lay off our members," declaring that every musician who holds an AFM card is privileged to work without having to join any other union whether it be for theaters, radio or cafes"

Petrillo made his statement while here for a union executive board meeting

Just across the river in nearby Newport Ky was Gus Van president of AGVA who was opening a two-weeks engagement at a night club.

But there was no argument to be had from Van. He said he agreed with Petrillo.

"To keep peace in the family, it's probably the thing to do," Van said "There are enough actors around that we don't have to delve into another organization."

"If anybody who plays four bars on a harmonica or fumbles a guitar is a musician, okay," said Van, a veteran vaudeville performer. Let the American Federation of Musicians have him, no matter what their standards of training or musicianship preparing for such feats of virtuosity are.

Red Resistance in Germany

RESULTS of Sunday's elections in the western zones of Berlin will be combed over carefully by observers on the scene for proof that the Communists have developed still more resistance to their own cause. Unfortunately, they have done everything possible to conceal this; they have put up no candidates in the three zones controlled by the Western Powers and have refused to have any election at all in the Russian zone.

This itself, however, is an admission of defeat. Whenever an election threatens to go against them, Communists will not participate. If they do participate and happen to lose, they scream that the election was rigged against them. Here again is an example of one of the standard tactics of the Kremlin's version of cold war. The ballot box is a red weapon, but only when its users can be sure of gaining an advantage with it. They do not tolerate a fair contest.

When voters of all four zones of Berlin went to the polls in the fall of 1946, Communist candidates polled only 19 per cent of the vote. Observers believe the percentage would be even smaller now. The Kremlin never has dared to take its chances in a free election. Being dedicated wholly to the arrogant proposition that a minority should dictate the terms of existence for a majority, it never can let voters express themselves.

Winning Combination

SOME of Mr. Truman's "friends" who had been pumping him full of advice about making over his cabinet must feel kind of silly. He has let them know, in a mild way, that the cabinet's his business, not theirs. He has no immediate changes in mind.

While this doesn't close the door on future changes it's a broad hint that the man who won the presidential election his own way intends to keep right on running things his own way. Mr. Truman's position is like that of the baseball manager who has hit on a winning combination, yet is urged by the grandstand managers to break it up in favor of some other combination which would be more to their liking.

He has no lack of "friends" eager to tell him just how he should interpret his mandate of Nov. 2. But in his first press conference in Washington since the election, he has made it pretty plain that he will rely on his own interpretation, having demonstrated in the election itself that in matters of political judgment he qualifies as more of an expert than most of his unsolicited advisers.

60,000,000 Humans Reborn

APPROVAL of a clause in India's new constitution has done for some 60,000,000 untouchables what generations of striving couldn't do. They have been taken out of the eternal bondage of a caste system.

Their rebirth, however, is only legal. It has no positive effect on their status in society. It cannot undo the circumstances of countless centuries of Indian experience, during which the caste system was developed. And it must be noted that the new constitution does not abolish the caste system; it only prohibits untouchability, a harsh condition imposed on the lowest of all castes. Similar caste conditions affecting millions of other Indians are unchanged—and probably unchangeable.

Americans do not understand why this is so. They point with pride to the fluid condition of their own population. They say they abhor the satisfaction of society which determines a human being's status by what he does, or by what his ancestors were, instead of by what he is able to make of himself. The Indian caste system has been an affront to the American sense of fair play. Perhaps now that its ugliest aspect—the untouchables—has been eliminated, more Americans can turn a thoughtful eye on evidence that they themselves are not immune to the stratification of society.

Yes, But . . .

THREE plain facts now have emerged from the post-election hurly-burly of speculation about prices and inflation controls.

1. Labor unions will keep on pressing for higher wage rates.

2. Farmers will not let prices fall to support levels if they can help it—and if they can't help it consumers will make up in federal subsidies what they may think they are gaining through lower prices for food.

3. The staggering cost of defense will be used as an excuse to regiment the economy to "protect" it from inflation, unless defense costs can be held in the neighborhood of $15,000,000,000—and at the proper time it will be reluctantly discovered that $15,000,000,000 won't be enough.

All three of these things are denials of the wishful hope of lower prices. All three will have a tendency to keep living costs at least as high as they are now and eventually to force them higher. And when light dawns on consumers and they accuse the Truman administration of being for lower prices and higher prices at the same time there will be some of the finest "Yes, but..." explanations ever cooked up in Washington.

"With a Broad Grin"

By David Lawrence

President in Merry Mood at Conference

WASHINGTON

PRESIDENT TRUMAN was in a jovial mood when he met the Washington correspondents on Thursday — so much so that serious questions of government seemed at times to be treated rather lightly.

Thus the President was asked whether the proposed restriction on "lobbying" might become an infringement on the right of petition guaranteed by the Constitution. He said any one who raised that issue was wrong. He stated that there was a difference between a paid lobbyist and a citizen who wrote to Congress or urged something in the public interest. Here is how the United Press described the reply:

"The Chief Executive separated spokesmen for what he seemed to regard as legitimate causes and those he called paid lobbyists. He said paid lobbyists constituted another thing and he was against them.

"Asked how he would regard lobbyists who worked in behalf of his program, Mr. Truman with a broad grin said that was a different matter that these were citizens appearing in the public interest, and he promised that anything requested by his administration would be in the public interest."

OBVIOUSLY the phrase "with a broad grin" was intended to convey the idea that Mr. Truman was joking. It is best to interpret such an extreme statement as having been made in lighter vein. Read seriously, it would give considerable comfort to the Moscow press where totalitarianism is practiced on exactly that same basis. If the cause is in the "public interest"—and the party in power decides what is or is not in the public interest—then there can be discussion and even petition to the government. But if it's an opposition viewpoint, it is squelched.

But presumably Mr. Truman was only joking. For he knows better than anybody else outside of congress that paid lobbyists are employed by worthy as well as unworthy causes. He certainly did not mean to imply that paid lobbying was improper and not in the public interest. There are paid lobbyists for labor organizations as well as for employers and all sorts of causes. This is because the average citizen often prefers to allow organizations to take care of legislative matters for him. There are, for example, many veterans' organizations with paid lobbyists.

• • •

IT WOULD BE difficult indeed, to draw a line between what some one in the government itself decided was a proper cause for purposes of lobbying. To allow anybody in government to make such distinctions would, in the language of the lawyers, be "arbitrary and capricious" and the courts probably would throw it out as an unconstitutional procedure.

The present lobby laws are far from clear. Mr. Truman intimated that he wants the laws strengthened. If he had said that he wants them clarified, he would certainly have been on better ground. For it is doubtful whether the present law is a valid exercise of constitutional authority.

Certainly if it is unconstitutional to ask a man what his political beliefs are, it is equally invalid to ask him to make a public record of what he says to a member of the legislative branch of the government on current issues. The present law stipulates that a lobbyist must tell where he has exerted influence and how he has done so. A more absurd statement is not to be found in any statute today governing individual rights and liberties.

• • •

CONGRESS CAN without doubt pass laws regulating the use of money or the offer of bribes or rewards to members of congress in consideration of their votes or action in the legislative body. Such laws are already on the statute books. But it is a serious question whether congress will be upheld in the present law, which requires individuals who petition their government to subject themselves to an invasion of their private conversations and even their private affairs. For clearly the fees paid to professional men for their advice to organizations or institutions are not a matter of public concern except where fraud or bribery has been perpetrated.

If the President is really interested in the lobbying that goes on, he might inquire into what happens away from Washington—among the political leaders who call up from back home and exercise political influence upon members of congress. This probably would be called activity in the "public interest"—especially if Democrats are involved. This last sentence is written "with a broad grin," too.

The Poisoned Pen

By George E. Sokolsky

"FOR a lasting peace, for a people's democracy!" is a publication of international communism designed to influence public opinion against the United States. It is as anti-American as any propaganda organ published during the last war could be anti-Hitler. And it makes no pretext of being honest or truthful.

Picking on the subject of "newspaper week" in the United States, D. Zaslavsky writes a violent diatribe against the American newspapers in spite of the fact that American newspapers publish in full the speeches of all the Soviet hierarchs, Stalin, Molotov, Vishinsky, Gromyko and about everybody else — speeches delivered for no other reason than to be published in this country. Valuable white paper has been wasted in the United States because editors and news services lean over backward giving the Russians a fair break in their columns.

But Zaslavsky says:

" . . . In their books, Upton Sinclair, Seldes, Willard and other American progressives cite innumerable, irrefutable facts about capitalist censorship — the most savage, reactionary and ruthless censorship of the printed word ever to be found . . ."

• • •

SOME AMERICAN writers were recently discussing this subject from another standpoint; we were discussing the fact that most book reviewers were favorably disposed toward plugging pro-Communist and pro-Russian books. I called attention to recent reviews of two violent pro-Russian books by two notorious fellow-travelers — where? Your guess is correct: in the Hearst newspapers. Or take the monthly magazines which lean over so much to what they call "fair" that for years they have practically become the main transmission belts for Communist propaganda.

But Zaslavsky says:

"The false, corrupt character of the American capitalist press is exposed by Americans themselves—those who have not sold their consciences. But these Americans are few and 'freedom of the press' takes the form of a conspiracy of silence on the part of the capitalist press whenever such exposures are made, while the individuals who made them are hounded and persecuted, the press slaves know the truth of their servile position. They know that the chains on their wrists are bound in velvet to muffle their clanging but they dare not lay bare the truth about the slavery of the American journalist before the public for fear of hunger and unemployment."

• • •

REFERRING to a speech on freedom of the press by Secretary of State Marshall, Zaslavsky says:

"Marshall boasts that there is no government censorship in the U. S. This is a lie, to start with. The Communist press is openly hounded and honest American journalists are behind bars. In many places, capitalist terror takes the place of government censorship. It is no secret that the editors of small-town newspapers are haunted by the fear of reactionary boycott. Is lynching an improvement on government censorship?

Many of those who publish this column are what might be called small-town editors. There are about 250 of them. They are Democrats, Republicans, Catholics, Protestants, Jews, Masons, Knights of Pythias and Columbus, college graduates and self-made men. None of them have been "haunted," so far as I know. Not one of them has been lynched. They publish news from various sources, AP, UP, INS, columns from numerous syndicates; the work of their own staffs and even parts of the deluge of mimeographed material from thousands of providers of varieties of views.

WHAT ZASLAVSKY does not understand is that the fault of the American press is that it gives his side too much space and the opposition to him too little. One Republican publisher I know bemoaned the fact that the American people are moving to the left. I looked at his newspaper and saw that he contributed millions of dollars of white paper to out-and-out leftist propaganda. As a citizen, he thought one way; as a publisher, he responded another. Yet Zaslavsky dares to say:

"Only a press that serves the people, belongs to the people, is controlled by the people, can be free. Such a press exists in the Soviet Union and in the new democracies. Only those who work on such a press know what human dignity is, they alone can be called men of the press and not slaves of the printed word."

Radar Clocks Speeders

THE traditional chase of cops after speeding motorists may soon be a thing of the past—thanks to radar.

Columbus, O., police are able to catch speeders without even putting their patrol cars in gear. It's all done with the aid of radar speed meters.

The radar unit consists of two cars equipped with three-way radios, and one with radar equipment. A pick-up box is attached to the rear of the radar car, stationed within the marked speed control zone. The other car is parked on the same street several blocks ahead of the radar equipped automobile.

When the speeder enters the control zone, the officer with the radar unit reads the meter and transmits the license number and speed to the police car ahead via radio. The officer from the second car is able to flag down the speeder and either warn him about speeding or issue a summons.

This plan is only workable during the daylight hours when license numbers can be distinguished. However, plans are underway to install the equipment in a car operated by two men who will give chase after obtaining a reading that shows the motorist is speeding.

To date, convictions have been obtained in all cases where evidence of speeding was obtained through use of the meter although no case has been taken to higher courts. Success in introducing meter readings as court evidence is due to the belief of the court that the radar unit accurately determines speed.

Home Sweet Home

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Sunday, Dec. 4, 1938.

Judge Charles A. Guernsey of Fostoria, presiding judge of the Third District Court of Appeals, was the speaker for the annual memorial service held by Marion Lodge No. 32, B. P. O. Elks.

Members of Marion Camp No. 32, United Spanish War Veterans and Betsy Ross auxiliary, attended a meeting of the Northwestern Boosters association at Bellefontaine. The group included Lt. Col. T. E. Andrews, president, E. R. Bondley and E. E. Glosser, secretary and treasurer of the association, Mrs. Glosser, Mr. and Mrs. Carson B. Shetterly, Mrs. Hattie Richards, Mrs. Ida Longshore, Mrs. Anna Jones and J. G. Orahood.

A surprise dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Roller on Thompson street was in honor of Mrs. Roller's birthday anniversary.

Ralph K. Ruppart resigned as general secretary of the Marion Central Labor Union and appointment of George W. Sorreles as his successor was announced following a meeting of the executive board of the organization.

"A home ought to be a sanctuary not a battleground, a place of contentment, not resentment," Dr. Harry L. Bell, pastor of Central Christian church, told a capacity audience. His topic was "Your Husband's Wife—Roses, not Lemons."

A. M. Fetter of the Columbus-Sandusky road and Paul Haas and Ed Ossing of near Cardington returned from a 12-day hunting trip in Huntington county, Pennsylvania. Each returned with a deer.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Tuesday, Dec. 4, 1928.

"The country can regard the present with satisfaction and anticipate the future with optimism" President Coolidge said in an address to a congress that was to go out of office with him three months hence. Under fire from the farm bloc, his final message was received with mixed emotions in congressional circles.

Dr. S. W. Mattox was reelected president of the Marion County Medical society in a dinner meeting held at Hotel Harding. Dr. C. J. Altmaier was elected vice president and Dr. T. H. Sutherland secretary-treasurer.

The British Broadcasting company, which controlled radio broadcasting in that country, announced that no women would be employed as announcers, due mainly to the fact that an exhaustive series of tryouts revealed not a single woman whose voice and personality were suitable for the microphone.

The Marion chapter of the Grand International auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers held its annual Christmas party and gift exchange at the home of Mrs. Carrie Kavanagh on North State street.

Mrs. Marjorie Cole was elected most excellent chief at a meeting of Marion Temple No. 381, Pythian Sisters.

No More Neighbors

By Frank Tripp

MOST city folks can't tell who lives down the street; many don't know who lives next door—nor care. Neighborhoods used to be quite self-sufficient in many ways. People depended upon each other more, fraternized in groups living near each other.

They had no cars to travel nightly where they wished; getting about was a bother. There weren't many places for ordinary folks to go, not much to do, no movies, radio, night clubs, cocktail lounges, hide-outs; few public dances, shows and concerts. Clubs were only for the wealthy; churches for the devout.

Lodges and saloons got the biggest masculine play, according to the tendencies of those who just couldn't stay home. There always have been such people. Of other family members who couldn't bear each others' company for long, most escaped by dropping in on the neighbors for the evening.

• • •

THEY HAD neighborhood suppers and played parlor games. They sang the latest ballads from Tin Pan Alley. Jennie poked out the melody on the old square piano. The neighborhood cut-up did some card tricks. The host popped corn and served cider.

Euchre, 500, old maid, casino, lotto, charades, authors, checkers, dominoes, crokinole, tiddlywinks, were played under bespangled kerosene hanging lamps, in overstuffed, what-notted, doilied parlors.

Out in the kitchen in some neighborhoods, the males of the block gathered over a growler of suds, fetched from the corner thirst-quenching emporium. They met to wrest a few shekels from each other at the frowned upon game of poker. The stakes were low but it was for keeps.

They played real poker, with no cards wild, and no wild players—at the outset; not until the third growler was emptied. By then the old lady would appear from the parlor and spoil an otherwise hilarious evening. Oh, they all had fun, according to their own fancy, don't underestimate that.

• • •

THEN THERE WOULD come times when being neighborly was a matter of life and death. Somebody would be suddenly sick and in the middle of the night Mrs. McInerny would come over and sit till dawn. Her boy Joe would run to Druggist Hooker's house. He'd go down to his store, maybe through the snow, and send back a bottle of paregoric or one of Humphrey's Home Remedy No. 87, which helped Mrs. O'Dell so much when she had the tisic.

It would be an extreme emergency when Joe ran for the doctor. That poor guy seemed to come into the picture until after every favorite neighborhood remedy had failed. 'Cause he got a whole dollar a call, day or night, and if you called him like as not he'd come again next day and run your bill up.

He didn't even get in on many a childbirth. Plenty of neighborhoods had their own setups for the blessed event. There was somebody in almost every block who could do anything up to setting a broken leg—or tried.

And as for domicile upkeep nothing short of building a new house would lure a householder out of his own neighborhood, where all the tools, gadgets and the know-how invariably could be found, for free, or for swap for services to be rendered.

THE sitting-up-with-the-sick practice was a swell alibi for husbands who stayed out late. Women must have been awful dumb, for it worked; until Puck and Judge joked it into suspicion.

Here's one way the funny papers spoiled the racket, back around 1890:

Husband—"It ain't four o'clock—hic—I just heard the clock strike one—hic—four times."

Wife—"You good for nothing sot. Where have you been?"

Husband—"Don't you abuse me—hic—you brute. I've been—hic—sitting up with a—hic—I mean with a sick—hic—friend."

First Church of Bennington

Old Bennington, Vermont

Vermont's Colonial Shrine
By FREDERICK POLLEY

TEN thousand visitors entered the doorway of this beautiful Georgian church at Old Bennington, Vermont, during one short season. There were many times this number who, as tourists motoring into the Green Mountain pleasure land, glimpsed the architectural charm and distinction of the Old First Church of Bennington. Maybe it is a wee bit of sentimentalism that creeps into our makeup an emotional appeal, that makes us fall for these Christopher Wren type churches.

The Old First Church of Bennington was organized Dec. 3, 1762, and is the oldest church within the present limits of Vermont. The building shown in the drawing is the second structure and was erected in 1804-1805. It has become the very "heart and center" of Vermont's many historic spots through the action of a joint resolution of Vermont's legislature, Dec. 11, 1935, making it and the burial ground adjoining the church, Vermont's "Colonial Shrine."

In the burial ground lie the remains of five Vermont governors, 75 Revolutionary soldiers, the author of Vermont's declaration of independence, the patriots who fell at the Battle of Bennington, the Hessian prisoners who died here, and other notables and prominent people of the commonwealth. The first burial was that of Bridget Harwood, a widow who died Nov. 10, 1762.

The state legislature met in the original First Meeting House on eight separate occasions. On Jan. 10, 1791, this body ratified the Constitution of the United States which made Vermont the 14th state of the Union.

Salvation Is Through Christ

A Sermonette

By REV. E. H. WIERTH
Pastor of First Evangelical and Reformed Church

[illegible] And in [illegible] there is no other name [illegible] whereby we must be saved.

• • •

UNDOUBTEDLY [illegible] the eternal God [illegible] in the sinful man's condition and so when these break up they break up [illegible]

[illegible] the dynamic leader steps into the picture people flock to him like filings around a magnet. He becomes their hope and their salvation—until in turn his bubble bursts and people are again thrown back upon themselves. Certainly a person who is saved is not thus blown about by every word of doctrine or circumstance. Unless a man is saved by Christ he is a lost soul.

There are two things which Christ does for an individual which compose his salvation. The first is inward and personal. It is that part of the Christian religion which sets the mystics by the ears and is the stock in trade of psychological groups springing up everywhere. Christ gives a man peace for confident living. By emphasizing the affirmative factors of life by casting out fear with love and faith and trust by changing the apperception of a man from the negative to the positive the whole physical structure of a person is so changed as to not only give him power and confidence but also to make for a far greater degree of successful living.

This inward power has too long been neglected by the established churches. Certainly Christianity is much more than something I simply hold to be true. Christianity also must be something that holds me. True Christianity is power for successful living here and now. If all that we Christians have is a promise of pie in the sky by and by even though that be spelled in terms of the greatest glory, we are of all creatures most miserable. For how do we know it will begin hereafter? And when is hereafter. Is not now and hereafter the same—both sections of all time? Unless a man have one foot in heaven he will probably not have any feet in heaven hereafter. Now is the acceptable time. Christianity is a message of something which God through Christ does for us inwardly and personally in the here and the now. This is one aspect of man's salvation.

The first lighthouse in the United States was built in 1673 at the entrance of Boston harbor.

YOUR HOME TODAY AND TOMORROW

An Ultra-Modern Board and Batten House

For a small, inexpensive and cheerful house, it would be difficult to better the design and plan which blends well with the flat of this one-story country house. The interior offers more than 365 square feet of living room space, so arranged as to permit of the most attractive furnishing and decorating. There are two bedrooms, each large enough to accommodate two built-in or single beds. The kitchen is compact, and ample for full housekeeping activities, and the bathroom presents a shower-stall, lavatory and closet-bowl. Considering the small dimensions of the house, 28x28 feet, there is also an excellent amount of closet space.

FIRST AID TO AILING HOUSE

—By ROGER C. WHITMAN—

Q We are building our own home and would like information on insulating the floor. We haven't any basement and would like to keep the floors as warm as possible. I have been thinking of tarpaper insulation all around the walls and would like to know if it pays also. Or would there be some thing else to use. If we use the tarpaper around the walls, should the paper also be put facing toward the floors or the ground?

A If you have not yet started to build, I advise you to reconsider the idea of a good basement with a water proof concrete floor. The additional cost would be well worthwhile. If this cannot be arranged give the underside of the first floorboards two coats of lquid asphalt paint, covering all surfaces, including the ends of the joists. Then put up your moisture-proof blanket insulation vapor side facing the rooms above, between the joists.

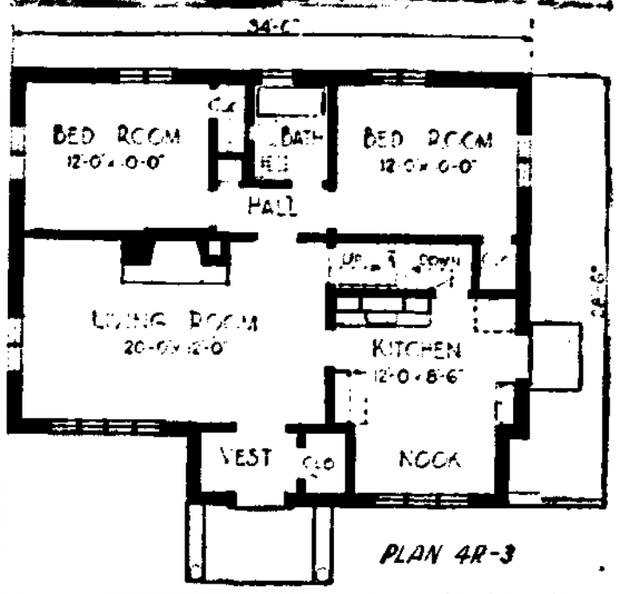
roof and overhanging front eave. The large window expanse in one of the corners of the living room is made by exposing the wall studs and setting in spacers between them. The squares thus made are glazed with ordinary window glass set in quarter-round molding.

This house is not intended to be painted in the usual manner. In place of the paint, the entire exterior is to be stained the color of red-wood or light mahogany or cedar; and then painted with linseed oil as a preservative. If cedar or red-wood boards and battens are used in the construction an application of oil is the only requirement.

The entrance is approached by few steps leading up to a terrace as shown. A wide board fence, shown on the left, is treated in the same manner as the exterior walls, and can be used as a link to the garage or to furnish an enclosure for play-yard or garden.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS



PLAN 4R-3

By The Associated Press

A stone house that is practical for a small growing family, this plan 4R-3 by Elmer Gylleck, architect, 120½ South Grove avenue, Elgin, Ill., provides ample attic space under its high roof to accommodate two extra bedrooms. With a complete basement the house contains 21,000 cubic feet. The kitchen, 12x8½, without the dining nook, affords space for a good sized group. The architect suggests stone veneer with a roof of wood or asphalt shingles.

2 Presbyterian Groups Meet for Luncheon

Members of the Women's Missionary and Ladies' Aid society of the First Presbyterian church met for a luncheon and program Wednesday at the church. For the covered dish luncheon served at 1 o'clock in the dining room the table was decorated with Christmas evergreens and red candles. Arrangements for the luncheon, at which covers were placed for 75, were in charge of Miss Mabel Wheatley and Mrs. W. N. Harder, president of the Missionary society was in charge of the meeting. Mrs. O. D. Anderson played the hymn, "I Need Thee Every Hour," and the group sang the Doxology.

Mrs. E. W. Warwick, president of the Aid society, presided for a short business session during which $100 was given as a White Gift offering and Mrs. Howard L. Olewiler conducted the installation of newly-elected circle leaders. Two letters were read from Mr. and Mrs. John Eason, workers in the mission fields in Brazil who are supported by the First church here.

The Christmas Story from the chapter of Luke was read by Mrs. L. E. Cookston for the devotions and the program hour was in charge of Mrs. C. O. Phallen. Mrs. John Christensen presented a group of piano numbers including "The Rosary," "Ava Maria" and "The Lord's Prayer." Mrs. Dale Lawrence reviewed Meet Mrs. Yu," by Mary Culler Wright, a true story of a Chinese mother and her family. The meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. Olewiler.

Rebekah Friendship Circle Holds Meeting

A meeting of the Deborah Rebekah Friendship Circle was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Mary Brocklesby in Caledonia, with Mrs. Mary Lyon and Mrs. Lois Baker serving as cohostesses.

Mrs. Brocklesby, president, presided for the meeting which was opened with group singing of Thanksgiving songs. Mrs. Marie Messmore gave the devotional meditation based on the 100th Psalm, and Bible quotations were given by 15 members in response to roll call. A Thanksgiving story was read by Mrs. Betty McKinstry.

Plans were made to send gifts to the Girls' Industrial School at Delaware and to the Veterans' hospital at Chillicothe. Guests were Miss Barbara Kaelber and Mrs. Wave Sanderson. The next meeting will be Dec. 28 with Mrs. Elizabeth McKinstry and Mrs. Betty McKinstry.

UNIVERSITY TO BUILD NEW TYPE DWELLING

By International News Service

CINCINNATI, Dec. 4—A new type of residence to be constructed by the University of Cincinnati was described today as "completely revolutionary."

Officials said the residence will combine the advantages of low cost and reflective heat and air conditioning. Dr. Clarence A. Mills, professor of experimental medicine in the university's College of Medicine, made the announcement.

The house's principal feature will be the system of maintaining year-round indoor comfort through reflection radiant conditioning which is not to be confused with radiant heating currently obtained by water pipes buried in floor or ceiling.

The University of Cincinnati home will eliminate such conventional necessities for interior comfort as furnace, air-conditioning unit, and insulation—hence its low cost.

Dr. and Mrs. Mills will live in the residence to make observations and keep operational records.

The central part of the scheme is to heat and cool through radiant channels almost exclusively, with little or no concern for air temperatures or humidity.

Wall and ceiling surfaces will be of embossed aluminum foil, one of the best heat-ray reflectors known. In place of a heating plant will be a few electrical resistance coils in each room for the generation of heat rays.

Cooling coils, resistance wires for heat, and fluorescent color lighting will all be placed in a cove near the ceiling, giving heat and light and removing radiant heat in hot weather only by indirection.

Broadway Narcotics Ring Believed Broken

By The United Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 4—A Broadway narcotics ring was believed broken Friday with the arrest of two men and seizure of $640,000 in heroin and morphine. Thirty women were being sought as customers and peddlers.

Jack Gordon, 40, and Edward Eichler, 49, were arrested by police and federal narcotics agents and charged with possession of narcotics.

A little black book found in Gordon's apartment listed the names of 30 women, some described as peddlers and others as customers, police said. All the addresses in the book were in the Broadway theater district.

Love's Perilous Path

By ADELE GARRISON

KATHARINE was glad of a rest as well as a chance to nurse There was nothing in her grave face or her measured tones to betray that she was given what the boys would call a "phony" verdict on Dicky's condition

"He must have absolute quiet for an hour at least" she went on "Make your bed in shape so that he can lie down on top of it" He doesn't need to undress, or get into it"

"I should hope not" Dicky growled realistically as Mary answered with what I knew was carefully planned pertness.

"There aren't more than two tons of my stuff on it," she said But I can clean it off in two feetle shakes of a lun feetle sheep's tail'"

Full Height

She dropped her imitation of Katie, and drew herself to her full height as she rose and started for her door

"Me, my other name, she am Paul Bunyan" she said, and when she had closed the door, Katharine looked at Faith, and the boys close beside her

"I'm sorry, kids she said "but I see no other way out of it You'll have to roam as far as you can ment as soon as I've taken a final check on your father You can read or play games for an hour Then I'll come back and take another look at him and give you another chance at having a powwow with him, if I can"

"That's all right with us," Junior said "Eh, Rod? Eh Brutess"

"Sure thing, Roderick said and Faith dutifully echoed his words Then she looked cannily at Katharine

What about Cousin Mary?" she asked Katharine with a hopeful note in her voice, for she adores Mary, and revels in the games Mary invents for her She isn't kids I know, but she isn't old like the rest of you folks"

"I guess that'll hold you aging relatives for a while," Mary said from the doorway she had not closed the door between the rooms when she went in to prepare her bed for Dicky "Thank you, Faith for the laurel leaf and I'll be very glad to go down with you and the boys I'll even promise to invent a brand new game for you, Faith"

Oh Goody Jerusalem Christmas!" Faith exclaimed, and Dicky, on his feet now, under Katharine's guiding urgence, looked down at his small daughter with wondering inquiry.

"Where on earth did you pick that one up?" he queried.

Made It Up

"I just made it up," Faith said proudly. "Down at nursery school we try to see who can invent the best one each week Lots of times I get the first one smugly Want to hear some of them?"

Later Katharine said firmly "Come along Dicky now I want to get you settled on that other bed and the door closed before I take these youngsters back to my apartment"

"What an interesting way to have made us slaves" Mary Dicky grumbled realistically but he followed her docilely into the next room A minute later she came through the door smiling

Come along youngsters she said Harry will double for Winters, and escort us over although really Junior and Roderick should be sufficient guard but we have to bow to Madge's dicta"
